- It is important for your child to be well-rested and to have eaten a well-balanced meal prior to appointments.
- We suggest that you encourage your child to make a good effort, but that the word "testing" not be used.
- Let your child anticipate "playing games and talking," and for older children to anticipate activities to "help find their personal learning style."
- Encourage your child to bring a favorite toy/possession/picture for conversation and to bring a healthy snack/drink for breaks.
- Children and adolescents are usually at their best in the morning. After school appointments for evaluations are not advised.
- Check with your child's teachers to be certain that the student will not be missing an important test or event.

"Your evaluation reports are absolutely excellent – thorough and very helpful – much more than most!"
